The Nines, a Luxury Collection Hotel

Set inside the historic Meier & Frank Building, which housed a department store for most of the 20th century, the luxurious Nines Hotel nods to its retail past with fashion-forward interiors and an air of glamour and sophistication. Guestrooms have Tiffany blue-velvet accents, Louis XVI-inspired armchairs, mercury glass lamps, and spacious bathrooms with corner-mounted vanities and mirrors and marble floors. When you're not kicking back in your chic accommodations, wander the hotel's art-filled corridors, where there are over 400 pieces by local artists on display, or head to the handsome, leather-clad library to browse more than 3,000 titles on loan from Powell's. The hotel's main restaurant, Urban Farmer, is a modern steakhouse serving grass-fed Oregon beef and local spirits (try the Moonshine punch), while the rooftop Departure Restaurant offers modern Asian cuisine and an extensive sake list (the largest in Portland) in a sleek, modernist space. During the warmer months, rub shoulders with hip locals and sip craft cocktails on the rooftop deck, which looks out over downtown Portland, the Willamette River, Mt. Hood and Mount St. Helens.
